

Another Crown for Tiny

Betty "Tiny" McMichael, OU junior, was named Miss Motor Sports Show at last week's auto show in the Civic Auditorium and is one of the 12 finalists in the Miss Omaha contest. She is also reigning Tomahawk Beauty Queen.

OU, Creighton Drop Games

Omaha University and Creighton University have severed basketball relationships.

In a joint announcement made by both schools Thursday, President Milo Bail and the Very Rev. Carl M. Reinert, S.J., president of Creighton, said that the decision to suspend contests between the two schools was reached after faculty-staff consultation.

The move was made because of the lack of spectator interest, they said.

The presidents indicated that resumption of competition would be considered when it is deemed to be in the best interest of both institutions.

Creighton, during recent years, has been following a program of higher-caliber competition and has announced that it intends to again attain a high position in national basketball ratings.

Father Reinert and President Bail said that the suspension will in no way affect baseball, golf or tennis competition.

Backing Into Parking Stall Can Produce Dollar Penalty

"University of Omaha General Traffic and Parking Regulations" Page 2, Article 5: "No car will be permitted to back into a parking stall. This practice results in damage to parking meters, shrubs and trees. Infraction of this rule will result in a parking fine."

For the past two weeks Omaha U's Campus Police have been issuing tickets to students who have backed their cars into parking stalls. Dean of Students Donald Pflasterer said that so far the tickets have been warnings introducing students to the new enforcement in non-metered lots.

Formerly tickets were issued only when cars were backed into stalls in metered lots. But to accomplish conformity in all student parking lots, enforcement of the rule is being applied to non-metered lots too. The fine for backing into a parking stall is one dollar.

400 to Be Cited At Special Convo

Six OU students among the four hundred to be cited at the Honors Convocation today will receive awards for special achievement.

The George B. Lake Memorial Prize in American History has first and second place awards. The first, for $50, will be received by Sally J. Anderson; the second, for $25, will go to Dorothy L. Hicks.

Betty Jafek will receive the $50 Chi Omega Alumna Award. Frieda Cohen will be given the Chi Omega Social Science Award of $25.

The $100 Omaha Panhellenic Award will go to Anita Lee. The winner of the Philip Sher Essay Contest will be announced.

The Convocation will be at 10:30 this morning in the main auditorium. The citations will be based upon scholastic achievement during the spring semester of 1960, last year's summer sessions and the first semester of the 1960-61 year.

Head of Building and Grounds Clarence Lefler said the conformity clears parking confusion. Adding, "it's hard to explain why cars can be parked one way in a particular lot and then must be parked another way in a different lot."

Lefler said most students who backed into stalls in non-metered lots and received tickets the past two weeks were more surprised than mad. He explained that the warning is to educate rather than penalize students before strict enforcement begins.

He said most drivers who pull into a parking stall forward do a better job of getting between the lines than if they try to hit the mark backing in. He stressed parking in stalls with part of the car hanging over the white lines can result in a parking fine.

When a driver parks in two stalls it throws the whole row out of line and cheats at least one student out of a parking place.

First Report—

Expansion Asked By Subcommittees

By CHUCK BARRY

Expansion was the key word Tuesday when three sub-committees made their report to the Student Activities Committee. All made a series of recommendations and, with minor changes, all were accepted.

"Full-time personnel are essential for development of a good intramural program," declared Dr. D. N. Marquardt, chairman of the sub-committee on intramurals. He called for the employment of full-time personnel in both men's and women's intramural programs.

Also asked for were additions such as a swimming pool, indoor basketball and volleyball courts and outdoor athletic facilities.

"More and better use of PE majors could be made if they could be allowed to instruct, officiate and coach as part of a PE course laboratory function," Marquardt stated.

Noting that PE credit is given for participation in the Indians and other such groups, it was recommended that credit be given for participation in intramural sports.

One member of the sub-committee, Larry D. Schmidt, asked for a pay-as-you-play insurance program to be started for students.

Speaking for the Music sub-committee, William Utley said, "It is the recommendation of this committee that the administration give serious thought to the possibility of our music program developing in the direction of becoming the focal point and major factor in the music life of the city and area."

He then called on the President to set up a committee to determine the feasibility of this proposal.

After explaining: "It is our opinion that the chorus has been too much a choir," the report asked that "off-campus activities be improved by emphasizing variety as well as quality."

The combination of the university orchestra with the Omaha Youth Symphony would be a step towards realizing the goal, according to the report.

It was also recommended that sources and expenditures be consolidated in the music department's budget so that the total picture may be seen at a glance and that a full program of events may be planned ahead.

Changes in the Intercollegiate Speech program as outlined in the sub-committee's report call for an additional faculty member to act as assistant debate coach.

Chairman G. Glenn Lewis noted that the group advocated a 50 per cent increase in the number of competitive events in speech and more off-campus trips.

Relative to campus speech activities, the committee suggested that more publicity and encouragement should be given to students to participate in Speakeasy group meetings. This recommendation was made, noting that "many graduate students are capable of excellent research projects but their effectiveness is materially reduced because of their limited ability to communicate orally."

It was also recommended that "More attention on campus should be devoted to encouraging those students who may not be interested in debate to participate in the other facets of intercollegiate speech competition, such as discussion, extemporaneous speaking, oratory and interpretative reading events."

Athletics is slated to be covered by the study next Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. in room 208.

Waokiya, ODK Publish Rules For This Year's School Sing

Rules for this year's All-School Sing, to be held May 19, have been announced by the co-sponsors, Omicron Delta Kappa and Waokiya leadership societies.

Any group of full-time students may enter so long as they are not composed solely of members of Omicron Delta Kappa, Waokiya, University Choir or Chorus.

Organizations with both men and women members must enter separate groups as there is no mixed competition.

Entries must consist of from 12 to 20 participants and they may perform for no more than six minutes.

All singing will be a capella and will be memorized. Directors may appear in front of the groups during the sing.

The first three minutes will be used for a song selected by the organization. Good organizational songs may be used but are discouraged and will not be considered in the judging.

The remaining three minutes will be used for the singing of a contest selection. Sponsor committees will select numbers for competition and they will be kept secret until all entries have been accepted.

Each organization must submit the name of its individual selection to the Dean of Students office no later than May 17, along with the names of the choral members.

A six-dollar entry fee will be charged each group to cover contest expenses. Organizations entering both men's and women's competition must pay a fee for each group.

All those entering the contest must fill out forms in the Dean of Students office by Friday, May 5.

Twelve copies of the official contest selection will be given to each group.

Dr. Bail will present the "Outstanding Bandsman of the Year Award."

The second half of the program will begin with "Joyce's 71st N. Y. Regiment March" and six selections from "My Fair Lady" will close the program.

Members of Phi Mu Alpha will serve as ushers.

Jack Malick, band director, urges the OU students to attend and support their school's activities.

"These concerts are given primarily for them," Mr. Malick said.

Brown Lectures Tomorrow Night

John Mason Brown, author, lecturer and critic will speak in Omaha University's Conference Center Auditorium tomorrow night.

Mr. Brown, crusader for the best in the fine arts, will talk about the current America theater, books, people—"The Cultural Health of the World."

He is an author of many books, and permanent panelist on the television program "The Last Word."

A former newspaperman, Mr. Brown was associate editor of Theatre Arts Monthly, and is now editor-at-large for the Saturday Review for which he writes a column "Seeing Things."

A limited number of free tickets are available for this lecture. They may be picked up in the CAE office, 182 of the Administration Building.

Beyond 30

By Ken Zimmermann

One of the tragedies of shoddy, irresponsible reporting is that readers attach a documentary truth to the printed word.

They fail to recognize the violations of a sacred trust, the burden of responsibility that lies with every editor.

In this month's issue of the Omaha-Douglas County Medical Society Bulletin is an unsigned editorial entitled "Biased Teaching."

It challenges a recent "Great Professor Lecture" made by James Chastain, head of the OU department of insurance.

Mr. Chastain, according to the editorial, is guilty of corrupting the minds of "our impressionable youth."

'Dreary Repetition'

"The immaturity of his thoughts draws one to the inescapable conclusion that the name of this lecture series should be changed," says the writer.

"The great lecture," the editorial continues, "was a dreary repetition of the rantings of the socialist pseudo-intellectuals who hold positions on our university faculties and who influence our impressionable youth with ideas that are completely devoid of fact—and whose salaries are paid by the 'reactionary' tax payer."

In the final paragraph, this unnamed writer has the audacity to declare: "Perhaps we have been unduly harsh with Mr. Chastain and his glibly discussion group but to our mind, biased teaching in a public university is a sin and should be treated as such."

Then he goes on to demand "equal time" in an attitude which reminds me only of the childish quarrel between Jack Parr and Ed Sullivan.

More Qualified?

In conclusion, he says, "certainly this society has among its members, men, who, by their scholarly achievements, their contribution to the public good and their dedication to truth, are eminently more qualified for the title than Mr. Chastain can ever be."

Who says so, Mr. Unnamed Writer?

What makes you so cock-sure that within your "eminent" ranks there stands a man who is capable of shining Mr. Chastain's shoes?

It has been subsequently revealed that your editorial was groundless, rash and, bluntly, a demonstration of irresponsibility.

You, obviously, did not attend the lecture. You, obviously, did not consult anyone who did.

Sin Compounded

Yet you leap upon a few words, taken from context, and condemn a man who was not professing an opinion but merely relating a few facts as they pertain to his field—insurance.

You compound your sin by distributing it among a rather impressionable audience, the Omaha-Douglas County Medical Society. I doubt if they're any younger, as a group, than the listeners who heard Mr. Chastain.

You have insulted not only a talented individual but the University itself—each singular student and each graduate who values his education.

Rather than "equal time," Mr. Unnamed Writer, you should be coming forth with an apology—promptly.

Public Affairs Talks On Speakeasy Menu

The Speakeasy club is holding a series of five laissez faire coffee meetings at which subjects of current national interest will be hashed over.

The first meeting is scheduled for next Wednesday at 11:30 in room 308 of the Student Center.

Library Boasts Books Published in 'Year One'

By Bill Vogt

The University of Omaha Library contains many old volumes; among the oldest are several which were published in the Years One through 12.

The books were printed in France immediately after the Revolution. The new government dropped the standard Gregorian Calendar and began with the Year One, continuing this system for several years before returning to the standard calendar.

The books are part of a collection of great historical value, acquired through a lucky purchase by Omaha University, Librarian Miss Ellen Lord, said.

When a man named Etienne Cabet led a group of French settlers to the New World after the Revolution, he began a series of events which led to a significant addition to the University of Omaha.

The group settled in Iowa, where a collective colony, similar to the Oneida Colony in New York and the Amana Colony in Iowa, was started. Unlike the Oneida and Amana groups, which are still noted for their silverware and refrigerators, the "Icarians" as the French community called themselves, failed to prosper as the younger generation became disillusioned with communal living. The group disbanded in 1895.

With them, the settlers had brought a library of 2,000 books which later turned up in the library of Tabor College, Iowa, which sold its library to Omaha University in the 1930's.

"The collection is the most unusual in the library," said Miss Lord. "We have tried to fill in by buying books on Cabet, and documents pertaining to the Icarians."

Inquires concerning the Icarians have been received from researchers throughout the country, including the noted Huntington Library in California and Marion Tinling, author of a book about the Icarians, Miss Lord said.

A number of graduate students have used the collection for thesis research, she said.

The collection, kept in the Library basement, contains volumes dated from the 18th and 19th Century. The books are often used in displays sponsored by the University and are used by Dr. Wilfred Paine in a course on "Utopias."

Regents Hire 6 Instructors

Six new faculty members were hired and four resigned at last week's Board of Regents meeting.

Dr. John V. Blackwell will return to the University as associate professor of art and chairman of the department. He was at OU from 1958 to 1960 and has been at the University of South Florida the past year.

Hired as assistant professor of sociology is Dr. Albeno P. Garbin who comes from Louisiana State College where he has been doing graduate work.

From Western Illinois

As associate professor of psychology, the Regents hired Dr. D. T. Pedrini from the Glenwood State School, Glenwood, Ia., where he has been assistant director of psychological services, team advisor and co-ordinator.

Donald E. Shult was named assistant professor of physics. He has been an instructor at Western Illinois University where he received his BS and master of Science degrees in 1951 and 1957.

Dr. Sebastian A. Spagnuolo will be an assistant professor in foreign languages. He has been a part-time instructor in the College of Adult Education at OU. He received his BA at OU in 1948 then his master of arts and Ph.D from Universidad Interamericana, Saltillo, Mexico.

Four Resign

Appointed assistant professor of biology is Dr. Phillip Lee Young from the University of Illinois.

The Board accepted resignations from William M. Alcorn, James Chastain, Robert Little and Jerry N. Rojo.

Everett Heads AFROTC Review

The cadence of marching troops and the shouts of "Forward March!" and "Present Arms!" will come to an end next week in a final flurry of preparation for the annual AFROTC President's Day Review to be held May 5 at 10:30 a. m.

Cadet Colonel Robert P. Everett has been selected as the honorary group commander for the review. For the first time, a junior, Cadet Lt. Colonel Leonard W. Morrissey, has been selected as deputy commander for the event.

University President Milo Bail will review the group as it parades in the OU stadium Friday morning and will present the President's Medal to the outstanding cadet.

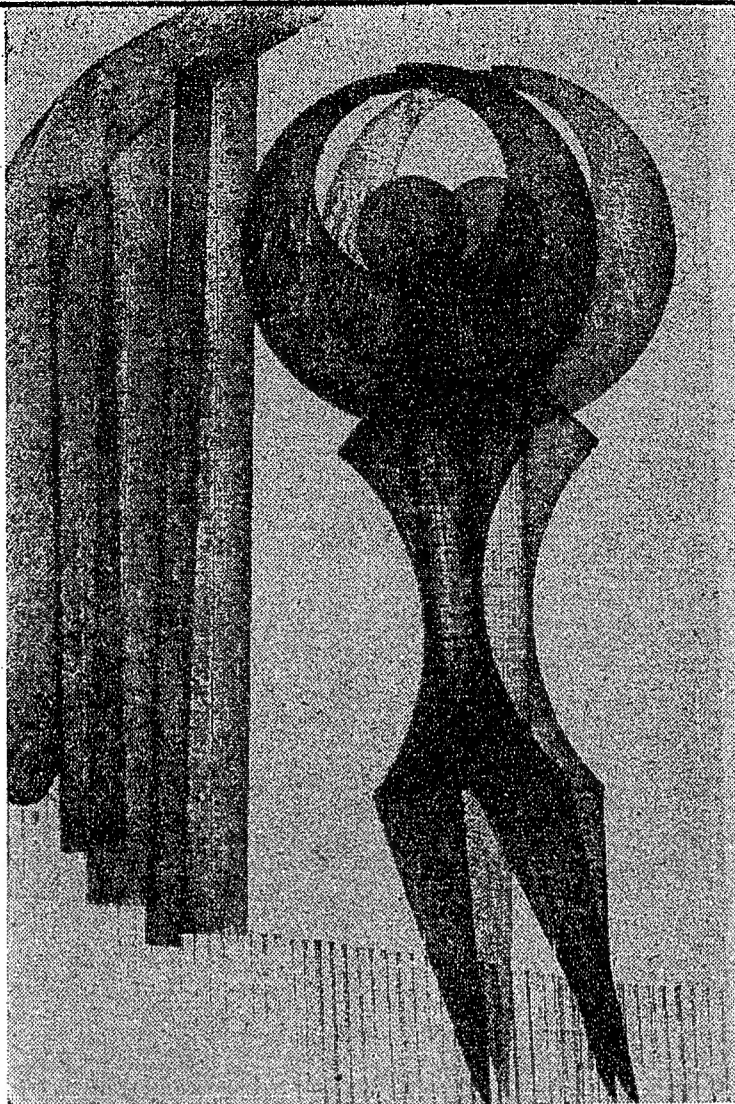

Other awards to be presented include the Professor of Air Science award (to the cadet who has contributed most to AFROTC), scholarship awards, the Air Force Reserve Medal, and the American Legion 40 & 8 award.

Practices will be at 6:30 a. m. on Wednesday and Thursday, May 3 and 4, in the stadium. These practices are in lieu of regular drill periods and attendance is mandatory for all cadets.

Charity Issues Call To Jewish Students

College Jewish Philanthropies will hold an open house Sunday, May 7, at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Harry Trustin.

It will be the first gathering of strictly college students for the local, national and international Jewish charitable organization.

Artistic Expression Found In Wood Intaglio Production

By STEPHEN SCHICKER

"Most characteristic processes of our time are so complex, manufacturing and commerce for example, that the individual is hopelessly subdued as a creative force. Teaching, to some extent, and the arts primarily, keep open the expressive channels."

Such is the philosophy of John Page, nationally-known artist and head of the Omaha University Art Department.

A collection of his prints and drawings will go on display Sunday in a one-man show at the Beardsley Art Gallery, 2613 Farnam Street.

"Prints cover a wide variety of materials and means of expression, Page explained. "I like the direct contact with wood, copper and the other materials used."

Through them, he said, "there is an intimate involvement and ideas may be transformed into images."

"We live in an age of specialization, even in print-making," the artist declared. "Most work in one of the four mediums but I have tried to be versatile in all of them."

His greatest success, however, has been with intaglio, Page conceded.

He described the process as one of cutting or etching in copper, smearing on ink, wiping off the excess then rolling it together with paper. The lowered portions of the plate become the printed areas on the final product.

Using photographs for reference has made Page an enthusiastic photographer. He has a collection of photos of many Omaha buildings "because of their interesting designs and structure."

Indian Tracksters Lag in Triangular

The Omaha University track team finished last in a triangular with Doane and Nebraska Wesleyan Wednesday but Rocket Roger Sayers came out on top in his personal duel with Doane's Clint Skinner, besting him in both the 100 and the 220 yard dashes.

Roger's time in winning the century was only two-tenths of a second off the recognized world record of 9.3 seconds.

He ran the 220 in an almost equally fast time, 21.1.

Bruce Hunter, who missed last week's meet, also was a double winner. He took the broad jump and his specialty, the high hurdles. He was also second in the 100.

The OU mile relay team made up of Lloyd Cardwell, Jr., Dennis Dunning, Dave Schneider and Sayers also set a meet record, winning the event in 3:28.3.

Marvin Bratka and Dave Haglund tied for first in the high jump.

Doane won the meet with 65 and 5/6 points, Nebraska Wesleyan had 53 and OU 46 and 1/6.

Ball Club Looks for Pair; Downs Benedicts Tuesday

The Omaha University baseball club will be looking for a pair of wins in the Kansas-Missouri-Nebraska baseball league as it moves to Kansas City for a twin bill against Rockhurst tomorrow afternoon.

Before returning home, the Omahans will pick up a nine inning contest with William Jewell of Liberty, Missouri Monday.

Meanwhile the Tribe boosted its season record to 8 wins against 2 losses with 2 wins over St. Benedict's Tuesday.

Allow Six Hits

Lefthanders Barry Miller and Mike Szemplenski limited the Ravens to a total of six hits as the Indians won 5-0 and 9-1.

Veteran Jack Vaccaro collected five straight hits, in the twin bill before being relieved late in the second game.

His replacement Bob McCormack lined a double to left scoring two runs in his only appearance at the plate.

Miller, in achieving his fifth straight win of the year, struck out 11 Ravens running his season total to 65.

Indians Strike Early

The Indians scored six runs in the first two innings of the night cap helping Szemplenski to his first college victory.

On the recent swing through South Dakota, the Indians picked up two wins and absorbed one loss.

Down South Dakota

The Tribe downed South Dakota 10-4 behind 13 Indian hits.

Junior hurler Gary Wentworth, who needed relief from Mike Coughlin and Mike Szemplenski, chalked up his first win of the campaign and his first as a starter for OU in three years.

Wentworth also collected his first base hit of his college career, a single up the middle.

South Dakota State became the Indians' sixth scalp last Friday when the Tribe jumped on the Jackrabbits for six runs in the eighth to grab an 8-3 victory in the first of a two game series.

Miller Hot

Omaha lefty Barry Miller kept his strike-out pace hot by adding 13 whiffs in that contest.

Dave Aden allowed the South Dakotans six hits in the series final Saturday but lost a 3-1 decision.

The Jackrabbits wrapped up the contest with two runs in the eighth on a sacrifice fly and double after two walks and a passed ball put runners in scoring position.

Third sacker Rich Moriarity produced the only Indian run with a towering home run in the sixth inning.

Back Bending Drill

Baseball coach Virgil Yelkin put his charges through a back bending drill Monday in preparation for their home opener against St. Benedict's Tuesday.

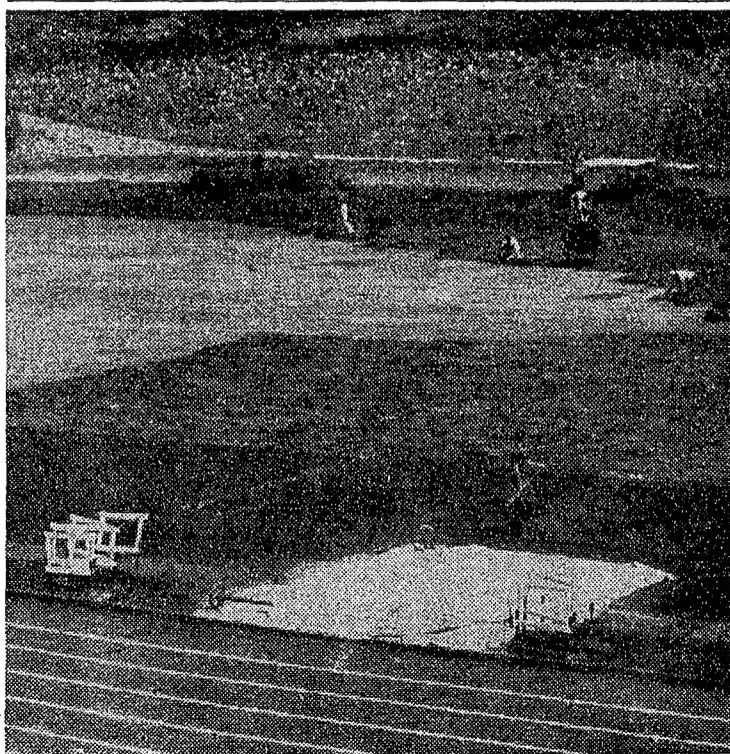

The drill was an attempt to remove rocks from the new university baseball diamond, which is located on an old parking lot. The lot was covered last year so the club would have a home field.

Yelkin also said that P.E. classes put in two hours on the field Monday picking up the troublesome rocks.

Maintenance crews, though hurried to get the diamond in shape, were somewhat successful.

The screens along the right field line and behind home plate were absent. All drives over the right field fence were ruled ground rule doubles.

The last year an OU team had a university located diamond was in 1957.

The OU football field got a face lifting this past week when the resodding process that begun last fall was completed.

The grid iron was raised 15 inches in the center to facilitate drainage.

The old sod was removed last fall after the grid season was completed.
